

School threatens mother

A homeschooling mother who recently moved to a new town is to be "investigated" by the local school.

Martha Ellis [names have been changed] has been homeschooling her children since the beginning of 2005. In August 2006, the family moved to a mining village in Mpumalanga, and continued their homeschooling.

Recently, Martha was contacted by the local school and cautioned to expect a visit from the headmaster, to investigate her home education.